Custom Cabinetry

Cord's Cabinetry believes in quality. That is why we are one of the few remaining custom cabinetry manufacturers that use solid wood in the construction of our cabinetry. Nothing is more beautiful than natural wood.

Natural woods have many characteristics which cannot be imitated by simulated wood products. Each species of wood has its own unique characteristics and within each species there are many variations. No two pieces of wood are exactly alike. These variations are not flaws, but a quality which adds to the beauty of natural solid wood in our cabinetry. By using natural solid wood, you can be assured that no other kitchen will be exactly like yours.

We are a fully operational custom shop. You are not limited to what you see in our literature, on our website or, in our showroom. If you can dream it, we can build it!

Countless Choices

 OAK: America's most abundant hardwood species. Oak has been predominately used in our new cabinets. Oak has a dramatic grain pattern, dark mineral streaks and very small pink pin knots.

 MAPLE: Maple has a mainly straight grain. There are several distinctive characteristics with maple including birds eye, fiddle back, mineral streaks, and curly grain. All of these characteristics are marginal, which makes this the best paint grade wood.

 HICKORY: For those that want to create a kitchen with dramatic wood characteristics, Hickory has intense contrasts from white to chocolate brown and a strong grain pattern with occasional burls, which are brought out by darker stains.

 CHERRY: Cherry has always been considered a luxury wood for cabinetry or furniture because of its rich crimson tones. When naturally finished, Cherry has many contrasting shades of light red and cream.

 WALNUT: Dark and rich beauty describes this luxury wood. Finished natural, walnut cabinetry will show elegantly.

 PINE: Pine has a pale white/yellow color similar to maple, but with occasional red/brown streaks. As pine ages it will take on a golden honey color. This wood can have very large knots, very small knots or, no knots at all.
